Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-29, 34-35 and 41-57 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance for Claims 1-29, 34-35 and 41-57: The best prior art of record, Nymeyer neither discloses nor fairly suggests the limitation of, in a method of conducting an auction, steps of identifying an auction leader based on a third function of a comparison of accumulated values of a first bidder with accumulated values of at least one other bidder, closing the auction to all further bids by any bidder other than the auction leader after a pre-determined time period, and permitting the auction leader to make one final bid after auction closing, thereby encouraging bidders to become the auction leader by bidding early and maintaining the high bid throughout the auction. The effect of this is to discourage sniping bids; other art seeks to discourage sniping, but none discloses or fairly suggests one final bid by an auction leader identified by comparison of accumulated values among bidders.

Claims 53-57 are understood to be apparatus claims based on recitation of "means for" language.

The newly cited COM Final Bid reference is cited for its general teaching of sniping tools.

The drawings are acceptable as presented.

Conclusion
